

TELLING IT LIKE IT IS 2008

We the citizens and residents of the USA have been put on this govt. run train that is heading over a cliff to oblivion. We have to do the right thing and acknowledge our mistakes of the past and correct them. Now we all didn't make the same mistakes but the conglomeration of them has led us to where we are today. We can not continue to do things the same way and expect different results than we've received over the past seventy five years. Continuing to send politicians off to Wash. DC and expecting them to look after the best interest of the county when the evidence clearly shows, with the exception of Ron Paul, they only look out for themselves. The shame is ours for allowing this to continue for all this time. None of these people have the intestinal fortitude to step in front of the train.

When the govt. provides you with anything of value it means they stole at least twice that value from someone else. Our job is to stop condoning this theft and take responsibility for our past thefts and go in a new direction where we pay our own way. Anything the govt. provides is less expensive in the private sector. Its common knowledge that the govt. could save half their expenditure for welfare and such if they just mailed a check to everyone who claimed they were in need and eliminated all the bureaucrats who run the programs. We need to take responsibility for our inaction that allowed the govt. to continue these programs by stealing from some people to provide for others. When we get the govt. out of the way you will once again be free to take care of yourself and anyone else you choose on a voluntary basis.

The bureaucrats have convinced the public that they are indispensable and provide great service to the needy. This is total bull shit. Private charities would do a better job at far less cost. All that these thieves in Wash. DC do is keep coming up with some new war to divert attention from the lousy job they are doing while robbing the public blind. Wars on poverty, drugs, terror and any other scheme they invent are all designed to cover the fact that they don't do anything well and have to start a new campaign to cover the fact that they never succeeded in the last one. Enough is enough.

If you think your fellow citizens owe you a free lunch then have the balls to go out and rob them yourself or have the guts to earn what you need to provide for yourself. I know they are going to say it's for those who can't help themselves, rest assured if we get the govt. out of the way we'll all be able to assist whom ever we choose.

We need to end this on going criminal conspiracy which is dragging us down and insist that from this day forward anyone who finagles with the intent of the constitution shall be considered a traitor and dealt with accordingly. All laws that have been passed in violation of the original constitution should be declared null and void period. We've been blessed with a history that provided to us through our Declaration of Independence and Constitution which started the greatest nation this earth has ever seen and in the past hundred years we've allowed socialist thinking thieves to whittle away at the Constitution and steal our freedom and liberty. It's our responsibility to change our ways or we are all doomed because you and I both know the democrats and republicans are not getting in front of that train.
